In-depth workshop where participants will learn the myths of addiction; the connection between the addiction process as it relates to neurobiological functioning and its correlation with biblical principles and the change process; family roles and co-dependencies; understand enabling behaviors, types and context to the behavioral life of those in addiction and its effect on family members.

Workshop Objectives: You will gain understanding on ...

- why family members are at an inherent disadvantage to respond to addiction in healthy and productive ways;
- the concept of "hitting rock bottom" and "will power" as it relates to addiction and recovery;
- the addicted, the brain and biblical messages;
- family roles and co-dependencies; and
- enabling behaviors: definition, types and impact.
